The Independents Have a Big Row.

REPUBLICANS ARE SLOW

Sub-Committee are Unprepared to Make a Report and Want More Time.

HE meeting of the Independent charter commission broke up in a row last night, and for a few minutes there was danger of some of the members coming to blows over certain statements which two men made upon the floor relative to the sincerity of other members of the commission.

At the beginning of the discussion of the report a sharp tilt occurred between John Wise, Edgar Caypless and L. H. Dee. The former began blocking the progress of the reading of the report by Mr. Caypless, and the latter said the bickering and haggling over technicalities was boy's play. Wise retorted sharply, and was about to attack the reader, when Caypless arose and stated that if these interruptions and blockings were continued he would drop the matter then and there. This quieted Wise down. Cayptess reminded Wise that he knew his business, and denounced the action of several mem-

Chairman Testa at this juncture called for order, and motioned to Vice Chairman R. N. Boyd to occupy the chair in order that he might take the floor to speak upon the matter under discussion. He advocated a re-committal of the entire bill to a special committee, with authority to revise it and suggest amendments, so that the work could be carried on more expeditiously. The suggestion was at first favorably received, but when subjected to running fire of debate, was finally defeat-

The chairman took a seat in the rear part of the room and awaited signal from the vice chairman to resume possession of the gavei. The vice chair-man, however, utterly ignored pariiamentary law by keeping his seat at the desk, and left the big chairman to vote aye and nay upon the questions under discussion. At last, when it was apparent to every one in the room that Boyd had usurped the throne of Testa, the latter came forward and seated himself directly under the eye of the vice chairman, evidently with the intention of mutely calling his attention to the fact that Boyd should step down and out, but he made no move to do this. Testa finally took his hat and a copy of the report and went out of the

Mr. Erving said the commission was left without a quorum, and L. H. Dee was sent in haste after the retreating figure of the editor-chairman. He came back and said that Testa had eluded him. Then came the fun of the evening. James Quinn arose and denounced the action of the men who had "sneaked" out of the room, which he said was paramount to an assertion attempt to block the report from ever reaching the Legislature.

"There are a whole lot of men in this commission," said Quinn, with emphasis, and shaking his hand at the open door through which the chairman You don't have to use a knife always tee, and explaining why further time to kill a man. There are other ways should be granted. of doing it, and it is the same with this charter. There is a crowd here contrary to parliamentary rules.

The vice chairman in vain inquired whether there was a motion to adjourn as the clamor became greater. then took the floor in answer to Quinn, and said he did not like the latter's words. "That is just what I mean," shouted the hackman. "I say it again to all of you. If this committee of five brings in another report, these sneaks will do the same trick again to block it. One wants to refer it to a committee; another wants to adjourn, and the others sneak out of the room. And look here, Mr. Wlse, you were reported in the Bulletin as opposed to municipalities. That's what you said if you were reported right." Do you believe that paper? But this is no place to discuss all these things," retorted the 16 to 1 advocate. In the midst of the turmoil the vice chairman announced the meeting adjourned until Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The regular order of business for the

which was adopted. A form of bond for the county sheriff was presented and adopted. The bill provides for a coroner who shall serve for two years, under a bond of $5,000. It provides that the coroner shall be a conservator of the peace. He shall hold inquests when deaths result from criminal means. Subpoenas shall be issued by the coroner which shall have the same force and effect as if issued by a justice of the peace. Six jurors shall sit at each inquest; each of whom shall receive $3 per day while engaged in that duty. The coroner's fee for autopsies is fixed at $10 per day.

One of the radical improvements suggested is that in all inquests where death results by criminal means, the jury's verdict will be held a secret until arrests are made, or until a reasonable time has passed.

A probate judge is provided for each county, who shall serve for two years, under a $5,000 bond. He is to be elected after the session of the first Legislature, and will serve until their terms expire, or until their successors are

"I hobbled into Mr. Blackmon's drug store one evening," says Wesley Nelson, of Hamilton, Ga., "and he asked me to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism, with which I had suffered for a long time.
